The Mid-Columbia Libraries' Pasco Branch offers free public computers, printing and free wireless Internet access. It provides an extensive Spanish-language collection for all ages, including movies, books, and magazines as well as bilingual storytimes in English and Spanish.

The branch has bike locks that can be checked out for use while customers are at the library.

Service at the Pasco library first began in 1973. The building was remodeled in 1999 and again in 2014.
