

Most Mid-Columbia Libraries branches are open for "Curbside Plus," which includes curbside pickup and returns and limited computer use in branches. The Othello branch remains closed for in-branch use but will be offering Curbside Plus soon. Libraries also offer online print drop service and in-person copying, printing, and scanning. The Bookmobile offers curbside pickup and returns only.

Curbside pickup continues during regular branch hours, but computer use hours are limited. Hours are available for high risk customers. Please contact your local branch, or visit the branch web page to learn more.

To ensure safety for staff and the public, please note:

- Face masks and social distancing are required.
- Occupancy and computer time use are limited.
- Computer stations and all high-touch areas are sanitized frequently.
- All returned items are quarantined for 72 hours; they will remain checked out to your account during this time.
- There are no in-person programs, and library study and meeting rooms remain closed.

The State, in its Phase 2/3 guidelines, affirms public libraries should continue to facilitate services through curbside pickup where possible to limit interaction between staff and customers within enclosed spaces. Customers can put books and materials on hold then visit their branch's designated curbside pickup area once they receive notice that items are ready for pickup. Not sure what to read? Request a library grab bag, and let our staff pick your items for you.

The health and safety of library staff and customers is of the highest importance. The library is complying with all safety requirements from the State and has implemented a 72-hour quarantine of returned materials.

We do not charge overdue fines.
